Third Man Indicted For Mellett Murder Makes Confession—Will Be State Witness—"Mystery Witness" To Be Heard

CANTON, O., March 7.—In return for the information which he has given the state, Louis Mazer, Canton, third man indicted for the Don Mellett murder of July 16, last, will be given immunity, County Prosecutor Henry Harter, Jr., announced here today.

Harter and Ora Slater, Cincinnati detective, after a three hour conference with Mazer Sunday, both say they believe his story.

"I expect to use Mazer, as a state witness," Harter declared this morning, "and if he is used as a state witness and tells the truth, he will be granted immunity."

"The information which Louis Mazer has given is considered very valuable by the state, particularly as against those persons already named as conspirators, and, while it may not and probably will not result in return of additional indictments at this time, the state thinks it will aid materially in the solution of the entire conspiracy."

MT. VERNON, O., Mar. 7.—Hearing on the appeal of Ben Rudner, convicted of second degree murder and sentenced to life imprisonment for the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton editor, today was postponed indefinitely by Appellate Judge Houck following a telephone conversation with Rudner's attorney, E. L. Mills. Judge Houck granted the attorney's request, he said, when Mills declared that the "complete confession of Louis Mazer was in the hands of Prosecuting Attorney Harter, and in view of this development the appeal might never be heard."

CANTON, O., Mar. 7.—A "mystery witness," who will testify that he was with Louis Mazer, Pat McDermott, and Floyd Streltenberger, shortly before the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton newspaper publisher, July 16, last, is expected to appear before the Stark County grand jury here Tuesday, it was learned today.

The man, whose name is being withheld, knew of the murder plot, according to his story, but up until now, has been afraid to divulge that knowledge.

LONDON, March 7.—The Cantonese have captured Soochow, following a lightning like thrust across the Lake Taihu district, according to the vernacular press, the Central News correspondent at Shanghai reports.

The report lacks confirmation but, if true it means a severe blow to the forces of General Chang Tsung Chang, since it would mean the cutting of the Shanghai-Nanking railroad.

SHANGHAI, March 7.—The battle fronts where the northern and southern Chinese are at grips for the possession of Shanghai were quiet but hostilities were expected to be resumed at any hour.

JEALOUS HUSBAND

MURDERS WIFE AND THEN SHOTS SELF

Brings Priest And Brother To Scene Of Killing

NEW YORK, March 7.—Before the eyes of the priest who two years ago made them man and wife at a joyous wedding ceremony, Joseph Joseph, twenty-six, sent a bullet through his brain, falling beside the body of his wife, Elizabeth, twenty-four, whom he murdered a half-hour earlier.

Joseph was taken to Bellevue hospital, where he is not expected to live through the day.

The tragedy took place in the neatly furnished apartment of the Josephs, at 52 West Forty-ninth St.—an apartment furnished out of the money Joseph made by working eighteen hours a day as a taxi driver.

A brother of Joseph, also a witness to the shooting, told the motive behind his brother's act.

It was the story of a married man who was unable to hold the love of his wife—the story of a wife who found her happiness in the company of other men.

COLUMBUS, March 7.—Governor Vic Donahey today signed the Abele bill decreeing that eastern standard time shall be the official time throughout Ohio.

The governor, also, attached his approving signature today to the Hadden bill, providing for designation by the associate judges of a chief justice of the common pleas court in all counties having more than two common pleas judges.

Both bills, unless subjected to referendum, will become laws ninety days from the time they are filed in the office of Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown.

ALLEGED DELIVERY

PLOT FOILED AFTER SEARCH OF VISITOR

Twelve Hack-Saws Taken From Paroled Man Sunday Morning

An attempted jail delivery was foiled by Sheriff Ohmer Tate, Deputy Sheriff George Suggen and County Road Patrolman Kenneth C. Barr at 11:30 o'clock Sunday morning when Elmer Bowermaster, alleged parole violator, was detected in the act of smuggling a dozen hack-saws to a prisoner in the County Jail.

Sheriff Tate had indirectly been supplied with information several weeks ago that a jail delivery plot was being hatched, and accordingly searched Bowermaster before he was permitted to visit Earl Cline, 21, a prisoner.

The search disclosed twelve saws strapped tightly to Bowermaster's legs. Three saws were securely wrapped to each side of each leg and the socks pulled up for concealment.

Bowermaster was placed under arrest and Cline was also placed in a separate cell while Sheriff Tate conferred with Mayor John W. Prugh regarding the extent of punishment that can be inflicted on the prisoner.

Cline has been serving out two fines of $1,000 and costs imposed by Mayor Prugh almost six months ago, on charges of illegal possession of liquor and sale of liquor to minors. His home is at 12 Charles St. He was originally convicted September 10, 1926 of bootlegging for having sold poisoned liquor to two boys, one of whom almost died after drinking the liquid. Three months later he was again convicted.

Bowermaster is under parole from a sentence to the Ohio State Reformatory at Mansfield, O., for auto theft. He was recently arrested for parole violation but later released by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy upon his mother's plea. The reformatory sentence will probably now be enforced.

Sheriff Tate announced Monday he has definitely decided to abandon the practice of permitting prisoners to entertain visitors in the east cell block of the jail. He is convinced that the plan of allowing inmates to mingle freely with visitors is dangerous. Hereafter only "prisoners' doctors and lawyers" or those entitled by law, will be given permission to enter the jail proper. Visitors must henceforth converse with inmates through the barred door.

In the belief others may be involved in the plot, Sheriff Tate expects to continue his investigation.

Dr. Stinnes is reported to be planning on taking up permanent residence in the United States after settling his personal affairs here.

STINNES SEEKING

DIVORCE IN BERLIN

BERLIN, March 7.—Dr. Edmund Stinnes, son of the late Hugo Stinnes, is seeking a divorce from his wife, Margaret, according to reports here. The two are said to have become estranged during the long stay of Dr. Stinnes in the United States recently.

The trial, before a jury in the court of Justice William Hitz, involves for the first time in history a direct challenge of senate authority to investigate what and when it will.

The trial will require probably less than two weeks. Both sides having agreed upon the essential facts in the case. They plan to push directly to argument upon the constitutional questions involved, immediately upon selection of the jury.

Although the entire story of the Teapot Dome leasing by former Secretary of the Interior Albert S. Fall will again be presented in the trial record, the decision will be not upon the validity of the lease or the alleged conspiracy incident to its execution, but solely upon whether Sinclair violated Section 102 of the federal code in refusing to answer ten questions put to him by the senate investigating committee on December 4, 1923.

SIX-DAY CYCLING

DANGEROUS SPORT

NEW YORK, March 7.—As the result of the worst six-day big racing accident in sixteen years, Mrs. Frank D. Walker, a spectator, and two riders were nursing severe injuries today.

The accident occurred when Emile Rohrbach, of France, and Edward Raffo, Jersey City, collided while rounding a turn at Madison Square Garden last night. Rohrbach's bike, out of control, crashed into an iron railing. Rohrbach and his bicycle were catapulted over the railing and into the box where Mrs. Walker sat with her husband, vice president of an investment company here.

The handlebars of the cycle in flight, a nasty wound on Mrs. Walker's forehead and she was thrown to the floor. Rohrbach was knocked unconscious. Raffo was less seriously hurt.

James Oliver Confesses Furnishing Booze To Man Who Died In Police Cell—George Spencer, Jr., Protests Innocence

George Spencer, Jr., 25, charged along with James Oliver, 24, with second degree murder in connection with the death of William Beyer, 64, from poisoned liquor, pleaded not guilty before Mayor J. W. Prugh Monday afternoon. He waived examination. Mayor Prugh did not make a decision in the case immediately. Oliver was not arraigned with Spencer.

Three hours after he was arrested on a charge of intoxication, William Beyer, 64, who operated a small tire shop on Columbus St., was found dead in a cell at Police Headquarters at 5 o'clock Sunday morning, presumably from the effects of drinking poisoned liquor.

James Oliver, 24, and George Spencer, Jr., 25, arrested with Beyer earlier in the morning at the latter's home, are held responsible for the death and are to be charged with murder in the second degree, in addition to illegal possession, transportation and giving liquor.

Oliver, in a confession to police, admitted furnishing whiskey to Beyer, which the trio had been drinking and a part of which was confiscated by police. Oliver implicated Spencer in his confession. Spencer maintains his innocence.

Both men will be arraigned before Mayor John W. Prugh on the murder and liquor charges Monday afternoon.

Decision to charge the men with second degree murder was reached after a consultation between Police Chief M. E. Graham, Mayor Prugh and City Solicitor J. A. Finney Monday morning. Solicitor Finney recommended that murder charges be filed. Affidavits were immediately prepared. Beyer was found by Night Desk Sergeant H. L. Karch and Jess Dorton, special patrolman, who entered Police Headquarters at about 5 o'clock after going off night duty.

Coroner F. M. Chambliss was immediately summoned. It is the coroner's belief Beyer had been dead for more than half an hour before he was found.

Coroner Chambliss will probably not hold an inquest or perform an autopsy, he declares, but will make an analysis of a half a gallon of corn whiskey found in Beyer's room when Patrolman Ed Craig, Charles Thompson and George Robinson raided the house and arrested the trio.

The coroner believes the whiskey contains a high per cent of formic acid or poison. Oliver and Spencer told police they returned to Xenia from Osborn about midnight Saturday night and noticing a light in the window at Beyer's residence, went up to his room on a matter of business.

The body was removed to the Nagley funeral parlors and was then taken to the home of Walter S. Deacon, 246 Chestnut St., Monday afternoon. Funeral services will be held there Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, in charge of the Rev. C. E. Englehard, with interment in Woodland Cemetery. Friends may call after 7 p. m. Monday night.

Beyer was a member of the Red Men's lodge, Xenia Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, and was formerly proprietor of a second hand store on N. King St.

Surviving is one brother, Herman, Dayton; two sisters, Mrs. Anna Greenwald and Mrs. Amelia Ellerman, both of Dayton, and one half-sister, Mrs. Ida Ernst, Dayton.

The bandits all were resigned to their fate and maintained a calm outward appearance to the end.

It was the first time four men had been electrocuted for a single crime in Pennsylvania since June, 1921, when four Erie men paid the penalty, and the second time in the history of the death house.

BLAME CHARLESTON FOR MANY DIVORCES IN GERMAN CAPITAL

BERLIN, Mar. 7.—"Charleston mania of the modern German society woman is the cause of many divorces of higher class people," said Dr. Frey, well-known Berlin lawyer, whose advice and assistance is especially sought by prominent stage and screen beauties. "Charleston very often alienates the affections of serious men from their wives. However, at the same time, one of the most amazing features of modern divorce cases in Germany is the fact that very often the divorced renews relations after some time has elapsed and even marry each other again. For instance, I know of a case where the man married his first wife for the third time. In some circles it is considered smart not to sever relations with the divorced husband or wife altogether. A call at an afternoon tea given by a charming hostess is often attended by the former husband."

"Also, it is a remarkable feature of divorce cases that divorces of people have become a rule, may these cases even outnumber divorces among the younger generation."

ADMIRAL DEMOTES SELF TO "TRAMP" CAPTAIN

SIR GUY GAUNT, A VICE-ADMIRAL IN BRITISH NAVY, DURING WAR, NOW IS CAPTAIN OF A TRAMP SAILING VESSEL. HE IS LOAFING AROUND THE WORLD IN IT, THE ONLY WHITE MAN ABOARD. PHOTO SHOWS THE VESSEL, NOW IN CALIFORNIA. IT HAS A CHINESE CREW.

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1926 ENSENADA, Lower Cal., Mar. 7.—War time admiral in His Majesty's British navy—now "tramp" mariner sailing his four masted schooner Four Winds on the seven seas!

The grizzled British mariner, Vice-Admiral Sir Guy Gaunt, floats a palatial home for a "tramp" and his crew, "who serve me well fair weather or foul," consist of nineteen Chinese. Not another white man accompanies him on his jauntings.

Sir Guy is a skipper, navigator and otherwise "supreme boss" of his palatial ship. The Four Winds, before he purchased her in Seattle a year ago, was the American registered lumber schooner Eric. The vessel had made two voyages to the South Seas for copra when the admiral purchased her.

In converting the craft into his "all time" home, Admiral Gaunt extended the poop 110 feet and rearranged the captain's and crew's quarters into four superbly equipped suites. In these he has installed souvenirs gathered from the four quarters of the globe, many of them having historical value.

Relics, birds and animals intrigue the one-time admiral as he searches the seas for quiet and happiness.

"See this!" he exclaimed with pride, as he fondles a magnificent sword presented by the United States government to the King of Samoa in recognition of Samoan bravery in rescuing American sailors in the Apian hurricane of 1888. Admiral Gaunt received the sword from the Samoan chief when he landed there with a party of British sailors to quell an uprising several years ago.

Another feature of the Four Winds' furnishings is an aviary, glassed to prevent cold winds from sweeping in on the canaries and finches. "Bob," a Boston bull pup, constantly accompanies the older sea dog.

Admiral Gaunt lives aboard ship just as though installed in an English estate. An old English fireplace graces the reading room. Ten cords of wood supply the flames. And the admiral's house flag, a gray goose on blue field, flies from the spanker, with the pennant of the Royal Thames Yacht Club at the maintop.

"I selected the gray goose as my house flag because it flies straight and true," says the rover.

Admiral Gaunt found naval life exacting, though the life of a care-free man, so he left his majesty's service for the freer opportunities of a "free lance" skipper. He was elected to the British house of commons after he had retired from active sea duty, but didn't like that. He had many tiffs, he says with Lady Astor over the question of prohibition in England.

He made a wry face, when customs officers here sealed a locker in which he carries his "mornings mauling."

During his naval career, Admiral Gaunt commanded some of the finest warships in the British navy, among them the battleships Thunderer and Centurion. At the outbreak of the war he was naval attaché at the British embassy at Washington, and is well known by official America. Later he hoisted his flag atop the Leviathan and convoked the American troops.

The Four Winds came into port for repairs, but she squared away from here soon for the west coast of Mexico, Panama, the West Indies and the Mediterranean, Monte Carlo—roving, ever roving!

"His ship is of 990 tons gross, 174 feet long and is fitted with two 100-horsepower Deisel engines for propelling the yacht in and out of ports. At other times she sails on, sails on.

TRIED FOR MURDER

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., March 7.—Roy Whallen, 33, E. Sallenville, went on trial for first degree murder here today. He will plead self defense for the slaying of Rodney Ogle, at the latter's home.

AIR PHOTOGRAPHER HAS NEW CARTRIDGE FOR FLASH LIGHTS

DAYTON, O., Mar. 7.—Lieutenant George W. Goddard, photographic wizard at McCook Field has developed a new flash light cartridge for aerial photography which is described as being faster than "lubricated lightning." It is the fastest flash light in the history of photography and preliminary experimentation is in progress over Dayton nightly.

Under regulations issued by the Department of War no information concerning the new flash light or the aerial cameras can be given for publication.

Goddard has been at work for months on the new composition and "potential" charges have been set off several times this week. The detonations are terrific but the flash is so fast that the eye does not see a rule record it.

The cartridges used in night photography are composed of fifty pounds of the powder which is set off by what is called a six second fuse. The photographs on a job of this kind are only six seconds from death but even at that they are in comparative safety, due to the speed of the aeroplane in which they operate.

After attaining the desired altitude at which they wish to work, the camera man sets his camera, drops the flash overboard and in six seconds there is a thunderous crash and a mighty flash. In the split fraction of a second, the camera faithfully records what the lens sees.

The fifty pound charge is attached to a small silken parachute. As it opens the six second fuse is ignited and "hell breaks loose."

The charges set off thus far above Dayton have jarred the city from end to end but occasioned no particular surprise for Daytonians have grown accustomed to this sort of thing in the last year and when ever an explosion is heard and windows rattle the usual surmise is that Goddard is pulling a new trick in the high air.

Goddard also developed the new long range camera with which he hopes to make a picture of Detroit 218 miles away. Goddard is to leave on foreign service next month and he is making an intense effort to complete his development work along this line before leaving the field.

PRIZE WINNERS ANNOUNCED IN "WHO'S WHO" CONTEST BY JUDGES

Winners in the "Who's Who" contest conducted by business men in the Evening Gazette and the Morning Republican last week, were announced by judges Saturday afternoon as follows:

First prize, $10.00, Mrs. Jane Bell, assistant at the offices of Drs. A. C. and H. C. Messenger; second prize, $5.00, Mrs. Katherine Baldwin, 107 Park Drive; third and fourth prizes of $2.50 each were won by Mrs. C. H. Poland, 335 W. Third St., and Miss Katherine M. Kelble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kelble, W. Second St.

Hundreds of answers were received and the judges had a difficult task on their hands. Every detail of neatness and correctness was taken into consideration and the final awards hung on such questions as complete and correct street and phone numbers, some excellent manuscripts being ruled out on account of lack of complete information. In several that were prepared with the utmost care in composition there were important omissions that were evidently oversights on the part of the writer.

The large number of well prepared replies made it necessary to literally spend hours in careful comparison of the answers found worthy of consideration for the prizes, and in checking and re-checking the errors. There was no manuscript received that was entirely free from error and the awards were based on those having the nearest correct information. Had the prizes been offered for uniqueness and cleverness of the preparation of the manuscripts the answers submitted by Miss Zetta E. Chenoweth, 273 Chestnut St. and Mrs. William W. Anderson, of R. F. D. No. 2, would have been in the winning class. Miss Chenoweth cut out the head outlines in which the questions were printed in the paper and pasted them into a neatly made booklet which had on the cover page the pictures of two owls, one at the top and another at the bottom of the page and the word Who-o-o connecting the two. Throughout the booklet the answers were written opposite the outline containing the question. The answers submitted by Mrs. Anderson were all written in clever rhyme and made most entertaining reading.

Others who deserve honorable mention for the neatness and completeness of their answers were: Mrs. Mary A. Hurley, of N. Gallows St.; Mrs. Wm. Hupman, Mrs. Charles Allamon, S. Detroit St.; Mrs. Paul W. Jones, Cincinnati Ave.; Mrs. Thomas Teach, S. Detroit St.; Mrs. Elizabeth Burdell, W. Second St.; Mrs. Thomas Cunningham, Washington St.; Mrs. Harvey Kiehl, R. F. D. No. 8; Mrs. J. Robert Bryson, Clifton Pike; Mrs. Anna Baldwin, E. Church St.; Mrs. Orin Ledbetter, W. Second St.; Mrs. Paul H. Creswell, N. King St.; Mrs. Lewis Robinson, 222 Cincinnati Ave.; L. H. Barnes, 121 High St.

The contest judges were A. Moser, J. O. McDorman and H. L. Sayre. Contest winners may call at the Gazette office, Tuesday and receive the awards.

POLICEMEN REPORT GOOD RESPONSE TO MOVIE TICKET SALE

At least 1,000 tickets for the benefit moving picture show sponsored by the Xenia Police Department, Thursday and Friday, March 17 and 18, are believed to have been disposed of, according to an unofficial check made Monday by Patrolman Fred Jones, in charge of the ticket sale.

An invitation has been extended to children of the O. S. and S. O. Home to attend the matinee performance Thursday afternoon, March 17, and the Home Cadet band will provide music on both afternoons and evenings. It is announced.

The entire program for the two days is now completed but will include offerings by local talent and music by the Harmony Kings, Xenia orchestra.

Police announce that those persons who have not obtained tickets for either evening may buy them at the box office at City Hall Theatre on either the afternoons or evenings, March 17 and 18, or from any member of the department.

The ticket sale is progressing far above highest hopes of officers, who expect to realize a large sum with which to purchase new equipment, including uniforms.

NEW YORK SOLONS STUDYING CHILD MARRIAGE LAWS

ALBANY, N. Y., Mar. 7.—An intensive fight is being waged to provide for effective regulation of child marriages.

Upwards of a dozen child marriage bills have been introduced at the present session, and advocates of this legislation hope the lawmakers will agree to pass at least one of the measures.

The bill which is most likely to be passed, according to Republican leaders of the legislature, contemplate a five-day stay between the granting of a license and the wedding ceremony. It is sponsored by Senator William T. Byrne, Albany Democrat.

Another anti-child marriage bill for which a vigorous fight is being waged provides that in the event a girl is between fourteen and sixteen the marriage may take place only with the written consent of a justice of the supreme court or the judge of a children's court, in addition to the consent of the parents.

Another bill would make it a misdemeanor for any town or city clerk to knowingly issue a marriage license to a youth under sixteen or a girl under fourteen. A fine of $100 could be imposed.

CHINESE KEPT BUSY BY EUROPEAN AND AMERICAN CRAZE

PEKING, March 7.—The craze for jade which continues to hold America and Europe keeps the Chinese experts busy since all fine jade work is done in this country, although the stone is quarried in Burma.

Much of the best jade carving is done in Peking. Here the most expert of carvers is paid U. S. $5.00 per month while cutters, drillers and polishers draw up U. S. $3.00 per month.

Apprentices in the jade houses must serve a term of three and a half years during which they receive no pay but are given a few dollars on each of the three festivals of the year. However, food and lodging is supplied to all workers and apprentices.

Peking carvers turn out chiefly figures of birds, animals, Buddhas,

Stimulation Great For Old Age

QUICK WAY TO RENEW VITALITY

Because it helps to modify the nutritive processes, scientists claim that proper stimulation has a pronounced moderating effect on the breaking down processes in the human body and thus may add ten years to the average life span.

To get real nourishment out of the food you eat is life-giving, and the body-building elements thus created nourish the tissues and strengthen the nerves and vital processes. When there is incomplete nourishment, even though you eat heartily, distintegration of the body cells follows, and we become run-down, thin and undersize.

A remarkable stimulant- tonic has been devised for just such conditions as these. It is delightfully palatable and is prepared by an old Virginia concern in business for nearly a century. Druggists and physicians have come to know this stimulant as "Old Monticello Tonic." Get a bottle today from your druggist, take a small wineglass full before your next meal—see how much better you eat—feel the glow of stimulated functions throughout the body. A few days' treatment will bring a quick change in run-down conditions and overcome lack of energy.

TO PREVENT HASTY MARRIAGE

Hardly a week goes by but some young man, often accompanied by friends or relatives, actual or prospective, invades a newspaper office to ask a favor of the editor. The young man is about to be married, it appears, but there are certain circumstances certain reasons he would rather the paper did not mention the granting of a marriage license, which being a matter of public record is usually carried as an item of routine news.

The situation is generally obvious. The young man has cause to believe the innocent little paragraph might cause a storm to break, whereas if the intent of the two parties were not made public, the tempest might be averted, or at all events delayed.

As though to set an example in assisting news editors out of this dilemma, the Kansas legislature has been giving consideration to a bill providing that before any wedding may be performed in the commonwealth, three days must elapse after the granting of the license.

This law against haste in taking so momentous a step sounds reasonable. And it should save much wear and tear on prospective bridegrooms' nerves.

NOT ELECTED TO USE FISTS

If there is one thing more than another which the American people expect of their representatives in congress it is that they maintain a proper dignity and a proper restraint at all times.

It is because of this that personal encounters between members of congress neither add to the esteem in which the country holds its law making body, nor to the confidence in the individual members themselves.

Three times recently members of the upper and lower branches of congress have engaged in personal encounters. None of them have been especially serious, and few, if any, blows have been struck. But the mere fact that they have occurred is enough in itself to cause congress to take account of what the effect such actions is on the country as a whole.

The house and senate are supposedly dignified bodies, made up of individuals who were chosen to the high office because of their mental ability, and not for any special prowess as a fighter or a wrestler. In fact, fights or wrestling matches have no place whatever in any of the deliberations of congress or its committees.

When a member of congress is found to have been placed into office by friends who spent a barrel of money in his behalf, he is immediately adjudged to be unfit to hold the office. And this in spite of what might be his personal ability or his training for the work at hand.

Then how much more so should a man who is unable to control his temper in debate to such a degree that he attacks his opponent in a physical manner, be adjudged as unfit for the office to which he has been elected. For such encounters cast discredit on the entire law-making body as much as on the individuals involved in the affair.

NEW THINGS ON WAY

Great factories are built today to manufacture products which will be obsolete a few years from now. Today's fashions are tomorrow's antiques. Man's tastes and needs change constantly.

Ten years ago ninety-eight percent of the automobile production was in open cars. In 1926 seventy-four per cent of the production was in closed cars. Consider what a great investment this has occasioned the automobile manufacturers. But the whims and wishes of the people rule.

The lay public seldom appreciates the great expense and losses involved in swift changing styles in clothing for men and women. Frequently the changes are so radical as to make obsolete entire stocks of goods. But both women and men are willing to pay premium for the latest creation of the modiste or tailor.

Billions of dollars invested in photograph manufacturing plants were for a time menaced by the popularity of the radio. Large sums will be needed to convert factories for the production of radio apparatus or other products.

Business on the vast scale that it is conducted in this country is capable of producing huge profits, but it also involves sweeping losses and great waste.

How to Achieve Beauty

TAKING STOCK OF THE FUNDAMENTALS OF YOUR HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Beauty for Every Woman

Just now, when we are looking forward to spring, I feel it is a good time to check up on the underlying causes of beauty effects. And by beauty effects I do not mean things superficial, as my daily series of beauty articles are not written primarily for vain, supercilious women, but for every woman who prizes good health as well as good looks.

You know "Beauty for every woman" is my watchword, and by beauty for every woman I literally mean every woman I am often confronted with people with plebeian ideas who feel self-conscious about the quest for beauty, thinking it is not worthy of sober-minded consideration. This viewpoint is all wrong, because after all, beauty is health—beauty is vitality—beauty is the arch enemy of old age—that is the fundamental kind of beauty which I mean—the kind which people who are in the know preach every day.

Beauty specialists do not make cosmetics primarily with the thought of covering up blemishes and bad surfaces—they are too wise for that. They know cosmetics are only at their best when they cannot be created from chemicals; it must be cultivated from the fundamentals which Nature has given us.

So I am going to talk this week about the fundamentals of beauty which include cleanliness, exercise, frequent drinking of water, correct elimination, diet and rest.

Although these subjects may not seem new to you, they are all important and you can never know too much about them. Therefore I feel I cannot write too often in regard to these matters.

The topics of the day—the A. B. C.'s of proper living and incidentally of achieving greater beauty.

Next, I will talk on the importance of cleanliness.

Keeping HEALTHY

by Dr. A. F. Currier

DISEASES OF THE TONGUE

Unless one's attention has been called to the matter, he scarcely realizes how many kinds of disease afflict the tongue.

Some of them are limited to the tongue alone and some of them are merely parts of other regions of the body, or perhaps even the entire body. From time immemorial, or at any rate from the time that medicine has been practiced by men as an art, the tongue has played a part in the detection of disease and even children soon learn to open their mouths unhesitatingly and show their tongue when the doctor is called. This is because the mucous membrane which covers the tongue is but a part of that which lines the entire alimentary canal, and the appearance of the tongue gives the doctor a good hint of the appearance of, and what is going on in, that canal from one end to the other.

The tongue is ordinarily perfectly movable in all directions moist from the presence of the saliva, pink in color, and about a quarter of an inch in thickness. From this normal condition there are innumerable variations. Its motion is restricted from tongue-tie, it is immovable in paralysis. It may be clean as a whistle, dry as a bone in fever, dripping with saliva from poisoning by certain drugs, or covered with mucous or pus in certain inflammatory conditions.

Instead of its normal pink color it may be white and pasty, fiery red or brown or yellow, or even black, and in each case it gives a hint of the disease which is present.

It may be so thick and large that it is impossible to move it, being like a lump of lead in the mouth, or it may be so thin and dried up that it can scarcely play its important part in the mastication of food. When the tongue is inflamed it is large and swollen and may be the seat of great pain. It may become inflamed as the result of certain diseases or poisons or as the result of injury. An abscess may form upon it or within it, and until the abscess breaks or is opened, the pain may be intense, and the victim will be unable to take any kind of nourishment which requires assistance from the tongue. Even swallowing will be difficult and painful for the root of the tongue is closely associated with the muscles which control the act of swallowing. Those who have been hard drinkers sometimes suffer from this kind of inflammation and it may be associated with rheumatism and other diseases.

Frequently the tongue is involved in diseases of the skin, it may be red or cracked or fissured, and it may itch uncomfortably in eczema, or it may have white patches upon it as in psoriasis and shingles. It may have sores and ulcers upon its sides or tip or its lower or upper surface and these sores are sometimes very characteristic. The sore made by the constant friction of a pipe is a very dirty one and not infrequently results in cancer. The sore or mucous patch of syphilis is one of the most characteristic indications of that dreadful disease.

Tuberculosis also has a distinctive sore or ulcer upon the tongue and it is needless to say that all these sores add greatly to the discomfort of those who suffer from them.

Tumors of the tongue are not at all uncommon, some of them are harmless so far as their relation to life is concerned and some are serious and fatal in their consequences. In the treatment of diseases of the tongue the first thing to be considered is cleanliness. Any discharge, whatsoever its character, must be removed promptly lest reabsorption lead to other troubles, consequently antiseptic fluids must be in the mouth almost constantly.

Like any other organ of the body the tongue when diseased demands rest, one should not use it in talking and it should be used as little as possible in eating. Sores upon the tongue call for great judgment in their treatment, some of them require strong caustic and others very mild and soothing substances.

An inflammation of the tongue can easily be made worse by the use of powerful medicines.

Tumors should be removed at the earliest possible opportunity, even cancer when it receives early and skillful surgical treatment has a certain percentage of cures.

Ask Dr. Currier that medical question that has been puzzling you. Confine your letter to fifty words and send stamped, addressed envelope for reply. He cannot, of course, make individual diagnoses, and he reserves the right to decide as to the propriety of queries.

MAKING MODERN MENUS

Another way to prepare fish, which is taking the place of meat as the main dish of many menus, is to stuff it as you would a roast and bake it. The fish may form the hearty dish of the meal, and when prepared in this fashion a vegetable may be omitted.

BAKED STUFFED SHAD

Clean and split a three-pound shad. Place in an oiled dripping pan, stuff, sprinkle with salt and pepper, brush over with melted butter and bake in a hot oven for 30 minutes. For the stuffing, cook one tablespoon of finely chopped onion with one tablespoon of butter for three minutes. Add one-fourth cup of finely chopped mushrooms, one-fourth cup soft part of oysters, which have been parboiled and drained and chopped, one-half teaspoon of white sauce and one-half cup of fish force meat.

Here's a dessert to accompany the above:

COFFEE SOUFFLE

One cup of coffee, four tablespoons of flour, two tablespoons of butter, one-third cup of sugar and three eggs. Make a sauce of the flour, coffee, butter and sugar. Add the beaten egg yolks. Fold in the beaten egg whites, pour into a buttered baking dish, set this in hot water and poach in the oven until the egg white is set. Serve at once as it falls immediately. Serve with cream.

SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"In spite of all the dissension and confusion . . . every penetrating observer reports that there is in progress a real revolution that involves the people of every class in China. The political overthrow of 1911 was a superficial change, while the present movement is nation-wide and reaches deep down into the life of the people."—Edward H. Hume, president of the College of Yale in China.

"It's the monkey-like spirit of imitation in every human" being that makes you yawn when you see the other fellow indulging in a hearty gape. It is very simple. The game spirit of imitation causes a small boy to put his finger to his nose if he sees another boy doing it. In many ways we are far from being grown up."—Dr. Frank Smithies, to American College of Physicians.

"Moral responsibility for the revolution in Nicaragua lies at the doorstep of the United States, not Mexico . . . Mexico has not the slightest material or political interest in Nicaragua."—President Calles of Mexico.

"America can take warning from England's empire building experience and be cautious of intervening in Central and South American affairs. Such acts are imperialistic, and will end in the destruction of American democracy."—Arthur Ponsonby, member of British parliament, in New York.

"The prison farm is designed on the cottage plan. Seven cottages, all of which will be equipped with kitchens, affording an opportunity for instruction in culinary art, are provided for. The prison will not be surrounded by walls and to a certain degree an honor system will be employed."

"This institution will be operated with all the punitive purposes of a prison but with surroundings and conditions of operation intended to be corrective and rehabilitating in their effect." Attorney General Sargent declared.

"A large number, if not a majority, of women offenders against federal laws are narcotic addicts, as well as violators of the anti-dope laws."

The entire personnel of the prison will be women.

The farm manager, already on the ground engaged in laying out the work for the future, is Anna Kester, former manager of the state home for girls at Trenton, N. J.

In addition to the women officers four male farm hands will be employed, although the women prisoners are expected to do the greater part of the lighter farm work, including truck farming and dairying. They will also operate power sewing machines, in making their own clothes.

For 500 inmates ultimately proposed to be taken into the institution a staff of 100 employees will be required.

KELLYGRAMS

POKER, AUTOMOBILES AND MARRIAGE

Every time I can't sleep well, I seem to break even by having the good fortune to lay my hands on something good to read. Last night after tossing about for an hour, I picked up a magazine article about poker by Foster, well known authority on card games. In a few minutes I became reconciled to staying awake. Before finally going to sleep I decided that certain truths about poker apply to nearly everything that we do.

The point is that one is unwise to enter into any enterprise where the chances of winning, and the rewards even if you do win, are too small for the amount or degree of risk.

Foster shows that with $10 accumulated in the pot, and the ante only 25 cents, one might be justified in betting, even on a poor hand; because if you should win, your reward is high in proportion to risk. But suppose that the pot contains only $1 and the probability of your hand being successful is only one in seven. Thus you gain only four to one, even if you win, and the chances are seven to one that you won't win. The odds are too unfavorable. Ordinary prudence suggests that you sit back and wait for a better hand, a bigger pot, or both.

But, insists a player, if you nevertheless take such a risk once in a while, it may be the very time when you will win. To which the expert would reply that the risk is wise, then you should take it every time, to have the law of averages in your favor; but if it is a foolish risk then you should never take it.

All of which makes me think of a friend with whom I recently went driving in his new automobile. He is a highly skilled driver, but takes unnecessary chances, such as trying to pass other cars at excessive speed on narrow roads.

"I often do it," he says, in self-defense, "and have never had an accident."

But the fact remains that most drivers who take the chances that he does, sooner or later get into a smashup. Applying poker principles, if the gain is greater than the risk, he should always drive as he does; but if the known risk is greater than the maximum possible gain, he should never do it.

A young friend of mine is about to marry a girl older than himself, and they have many opposite viewpoints due to their different religious backgrounds. I insist that he is taking a needlessly big risk. If one had a complete statistical record of every such marriage, I imagine that the percentage of successes would be surprisingly low.

"Still," persists the enthusiastic bridegroom, "a few such marriages succeed and this will be one of

DELINQUENT WOMEN TO GET GOVERNMENT HOME IN W. VIRGINIA

WASHINGTON, Mar. 7.—Situated in the picturesque recesses of the Greenbrier Hill of West Virginia, at Alderson, a federal prison for women, the first experiment in government in the rehabilitation of women delinquents will be opened during the summer.

As soon as the institution is ready for occupancy the government will transfer several hundred women prisoners, many of whom are now confined in state penitentiaries and county jails under conditions to prevent satisfactory rehabilitation.

The prison farm is designed on the cottage plan. Seven cottages, all of which will be equipped with kitchens, affording an opportunity for instruction in culinary art, are provided for. The prison will not be surrounded by walls and to a certain degree an honor system will be employed.

"This institution will be operated with all the punitive purposes of a prison but with surroundings and conditions of operation intended to be corrective and rehabilitating in their effect," Attorney General Sargent declared.

"A large number, if not a majority, of women offenders against federal laws are narcotic addicts, as well as violators of the anti-dope laws."

The entire personnel of the prison will be women.

The farm manager, already on the ground engaged in laying out the work for the future, is Anna Kester, former manager of the state home for girls at Trenton, N. J.

In addition to the women officers four male farm hands will be employed, although the women prisoners are expected to do the greater part of the lighter farm work, including truck farming and dairying. They will also operate power sewing machines, in making their own clothes.

For 500 inmates ultimately proposed to be taken into the institution a staff of 100 employees will be required.

DAYTON YOUTH HELD

CINCINNATI, O., Mar. 7.—Harold Hopping, 21, Dayton, O., was being held here today on a reckless driving charge following a collision between his automobile and a fire truck early this morning.

Although his machine was totally wrecked, Hopping escaped with minor injuries, as did a woman companion from Dayton, O. The woman's name was not learned by police.

Neither brutality nor regret is shown in the face of Michael Ponkrashaw, twelve-year-old New York boy, who shot and killed a storekeeper during a holdup.

those few." Let us hope so. But any shrewd poker player, looking dispassionately at facts, would tell him that batting averages are overwhelming-ly against him.

He could probably find another girl with whom he could enter the marriage gamble under more favorable odds.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, March 7.—Dreicer & Co., one of New York's oldest pearl parlor and diamond dens went out of business the other day, winding up its career of sixty years with the sale of more than $500,000 worth of jewelry. Since the announcement in November that the shutters were going up, a constant stream of the wealthy had passed in and out of the famous doors of the Fifth avenue shop hunting bargains.

It was funny to watch 'em. A dame who looked like a cross between Queen Mary and Gloria Swanson was in quest of a purse something inexpensive—not more than $250.

The one she carried away with her cost $300. "But isn't it a perfect duck?" she said to the friend who accompanied her.

A young girl was begging her Maw to buy her a ring. "It's simply the sweetest thing on earth, mother, and it's only $12,000."

She got it. Dreicer & Co. had a book in which were the names of 70,000 customers from all over the United States. Everyone of any "importance" or social standing at one time or another has done business with Dreicer & Co. The Vanderbilts, Goulds, Rockefellers and all that crowd were among the best patrons.

Eddie Ward, the 69-year-old doorman who has maintained a quarter of a century vigil at the portals of the brooch bazaar knew all the customers by sight.

"In the old days," said Eddie, "it was more lively. I don't know what's happened in the last few years. Things seem different. Tom Platt and Croker are all the political bosses with their diamond-lovin' wives used to come reg'larly."

"Ambassador Gerard was in the other day lookin' fer bargains, so was Judge Gary and the Rev. John Roach Straton."

"Who do I think was the best one of the lot? That's hard to say. I know Mr. Rockefeller handed me a hundred at Christmas and that sort of prejudices me in his favor. The firm give me a $1,900 bonus. Mr. Michael Dreicer left me $5,000 in his will so I guess next summer I'll be sailin' back from Fifth avenue to Ireland."

A traffic cop on a busy corner recently staggered, his eyes became dull and he spoke incoherently.

Chick went out, bought a soldering outfit and now avoids the supercilious musical instrument men by doing his own repair work.

Editor, Gazette and Republican: ASKS FOR ADVICE

I would ask your advice. My wife is so jealous of me sometimes life is nothing to me. I am true to my wife but she doesn't think so. Sometimes I believe her mind surely must be unbalanced. I have to mistreat all women to please her, and I know it isn't right. I love my wife but she makes life a drudge to me. My wife is pure and I can hardly endure to have her always accusing me of associating with women, when I only try and treat them nice. I am a Christian and so is my wife—do you think my wife can be a Christian and then ask me not to speak to women that have never done her any harm at all? Do you think I can do right and do good will and mistreat women to please her?

Every woman who is dressed nicer than my wife, I dare not speak to at all. If I do when I go home we have a quarrel. I give my wife all I can and then she is not satisfied. Sometimes I think there must be something back in her own life or she would not judge others. No, I give you the truth, I know she had no grounds to be jealous of me or of any woman I know. It makes me so unhappy at times. Please tell me how to cure my wife. I want to live right as God wants me to and I want to treat everyone right and I do hate to have people know my wife is that kind of a woman, that has no trust or respect for me. I trust you can help and enlighten me.

Sad-hearted husband. Sad-hearted husband: There is to accounting for the quirks a woman's mind sometimes takes, particularly when they have little room or reason for their unadvised thoughts and ideas. My advice to you, is to guard against your wife having any cause for believing you unfaithful. Do not be too friendly with other women, but remain courteous to all. Treat your wife with the most consideration possible and repeat your love for her and show it in all your actions. Do not discuss other women and if you wish her regard, treat her as the "one and only."

Tournament Defeat Ends Central Court Season

FOUR PERFORM LAST TIME WHEN MIDDIES CRUSH TEAM'S HOPE

Middletown High Complete Master Of Xenia Five

Following expectations, Central High School was knocked out of the running in the first round of the Southwestern Ohio Class A regional basketball tournament at the Dayton Fairground coliseum Saturday afternoon by Middletown High, 36 to 19.

With this defeat also went Xenia's slim mathematical chance of making itself felt in the sectional tourney for the first time in years.

Central basket tossers played at their best form in the first half, matching the Middies point for point in the first quarter and trailed 16 to 12 at the half. The first period was even, 9 to 9.

It was in the dizzy third quarter that the Middies, winners of fifteen straight contests, stepped out on a scoring spree that tumbled the game safely away. The victors rolled up thirteen points in this spasm while Xenia was being blanked. In the fourth period the game was back on an even basis and each team counted seven points.

Middletown defeated Xenia earlier this year 41 to 17 and the tournament score clearly indicates the Middies are superior and are one of the most powerful contenders in the district meet.

The first half was consumed principally by a foul shooting exhibition on the part of both teams with the Middies prone to hit the net oftener from the free throw line than the Blue and White.

The locals' main trouble was difficulty in connecting with the basket when chances presented. This was especially noticeable in the ill-fated third period.

Ryan led the visitors' offensive with twelve points followed by Jordan, star center, with eleven. Close guarding held Jordan in check most of the game and he only made four baskets from the field.

Xenia's point man Smith topped Xenia's play-makers with six markers while Marshall played his usual fine game at guard. It marked the final game of the scholastic careers of Captain Smith, Huston, Marshall and Hill, all of whom graduate in June.

Their loss will be keenly felt by Clemens, Morton, Doak, Gibney and Routzong will form the nucleus for next season's team.

Introducing 1927 Big League Clubs

By DON Q. DUFFY

Special Sports Writer, EFS.

THE possibilities of the Chicago Cubs of 1927 are not given an official rating. When a manager can take an eighth place club and convert it into a pennant contender and eventually land in fourth place within one season he opens the eyes of his followers.

Joe McCarthy was not one who reached stardom as a major league player. He was in the ordinary class and finally fell heir to the management of the Louisville Colonels. He was the best of the minor league prospects when the Cubs put out their lines for a manager for 1926.

Drawing a club that was composed mostly of cast-offs, McCarthy started to work. With the Cubs jumping away to a spurt the opposition waited for the annual collapse as had been the case with the Cubs for many years previously.

But as late as September 13 the Cubs were but four and a half games behind first place and they finished nose to nose with the Cardinals, Reds and Pirates when the wire was crossed.

"How did he do it?" they said. McCarthy was smart enough not to expose the secrets of his tricks. He asked for new strength on the infield, in the outfield and on the pitching hill. Sensational phenomena have not been added to the Cubs' 1927 roster, but they said Joe McCarthy does not need wizards of the diamond to build up a winner.

On paper the pitching staff does not display anything that compares with masters of the hill. But results were obtained in the past. Charley Root, John Blake, Guy Bush, Percy Jones, Tony Kaufmann, Bob Osborn and John Welch are the pitchers who survived the past season.

McCarthy confidently expects to receive new strength from Southpaw Brillheart, drafted from Memphis, and Luther Roy, purchased from New Orleans. They have had big league experience in the past, Brillheart serving with Washington and Roy with Cleveland.

Brillheart won seventeen games and lost nine with Memphis, while Roy won twenty-six and lost eleven with New Orleans.

Five recruits will be looked over by McCarthy at the Catalina Island training camp. They are Henry Grampp, Gomer Wilson, Lester Roupich, Joe Kaiser and Roy Hansen.

McCarthy was not thoroughly satisfied with his infield combination of 1926 and he may have a surprise when the season opens.

They have served less than a year of a two-year sentence. Their father is an active prohibition worker in Atlanta.

Neufeld Jones was a former federal dry agent. Winfield is an ex-newspaper man.

Coach—Maybe

It has been rumored that should the board grant the release of Reynolds, football coach, Vic Hanson, the greatest athlete ever turned out at Syracuse, may be placed in charge. Hanson has already received many offers to coach at minor colleges after his graduation in June.

Basketball Marvel

A world's record for individual scoring in a basketball game is believed to be held by Dorothy Compton, star of Warwick, R. I., high school team. She scored 49 field goals in a contest with another high school. Final score was 136 to 12.

WILBERFORCE GLEE CLUB AND CHORUS IS HEARD IN DAYTON

Wilberforce University glee club and chorus pleased an audience of 2,000 people that filled Memorial Hall in Dayton Sunday afternoon, with a program composed almost exclusively of negro spirituals.

The chorus trained by Professor William A. Sykes contained thirty voices. Besides the chorus there was a male quartet, a mixed double quartet and several soloists.

Commenting on the program, one reviewer said: "The quartet was composed of several fine voices, showed real ability in giving their numbers and sympathetic understanding of their selections."

Gilbert A. Jones, president of the university, in a brief talk on work of the institution, said: "At Wilberforce we are trying to do our share in the work of human uplifting. We try not only to educate our students, but also to instill into them a moral force that will endure to carry them through the crisis of life."

The concert was sponsored by the Central and W. Fifth St. branches of the Dayton Y. M. C. A.

COMMUTE SENTENCE OF TWO BOOTLEGGERS

WASHINGTON, Mar. 7.—President Coolidge today commuted the sentences of Winfield and Neufeld Jones, brothers, who were convicted in Baltimore of violating the prohibition law.

They have served less than a year of a two-year sentence. Their father is an active prohibition worker in Atlanta.

Neufeld Jones was a former federal dry agent. Winfield is an ex-newspaper man.

WHAT to WEAR and HOW to WEAR IT

 By LUCY CLAIRE
Favorite Fashion Adviser
of the Smart Set.

I don't believe there is a mother who does not want her children to stay babies just as long as possible, and I cannot say that I blame her for it. The children's departments in shops are just as complete and thoroughly planned as any other department, and in addition to those, there are a goodly number of specialty shops that cater to these little tots exclusively. Here I find the most tempting dainty little outfits that make you think you are selecting things for a great big china doll.

Take, for example, the two little dresses I have shown today. You cannot see it here so you must take my word for it—every stitch has been taken by hand, from the fine seams to the delicate scallops and hand-drawn work. I think that youngsters up to five or six years old look well in these little patterns of Mother Hubbard flares. You will observe that there is a short yoke across the shoulders and the fullness falls in fine pleats from this line. Sheer batiste, organdy, or handkerchief linen are fine enough in quality to be combined with this handwork. I do not say that these little frocks are suitable for play days—I have suggested them, rather, for the afternoon tea party.

I like to see all manner of clothes for children of this age worn extremely short. There is something about even knee length dresses on children who are small that gives them an appearance of added age. With their plump dimpled knees and clear skin, they look so adorable in very short outfits.

For warm weather or indoor wear, short socks are the most attractive, but the same effect can be achieved by getting silk socks with a small daintily-colored border and slipping them over plain, long, white stockings.

As to shoes, I know of nothing more suitable than the very flat heeled, one-strap slippers, like the pair I have shown above, for the soft white kidskin assures perfect comfort and fit and the kidskin can be so readily and perfectly cleaned so it is really the most practical white shoe material for youngsters. The pair illustrated here has small diamond-shaped appliques of black across the toes. Next I am going to show you some dresses that illustrate important points about the division of the figure.

UNUSUAL COLOR SCHEME IS EFFECTED

By HILDA HUNT

Very frequently the homemaker's problem is the placement of pieces of furniture neither all Colonial, nor peasant, nor modern, nor any one other type in the same room. Yet they must go in the same room or be put in storage or sold for a song. To place these pieces so they will not "fight" with their neighbors depends upon two things, grouping and color. As this is most frequently true of the living room, where the furniture has been purchased from time to time by the piece, and not in sets, our sketch portrays the arrangement made in a living-dining room.

Then general feeling is Colonial, but the small cabinet in the corner, the fire screen, and the overmantel arrangement are not Colonial, though it must be acknowledged the fire screen had Colonial ancestry. Still the furniture has been so grouped that it is held together with the feeling it is Colonial. The fireplace with the overstuffed chair, bookrack, stool and fire screen make one grouping. The built-in bookcase with the cabinet, the built-in glass closet with the table and chair beneath, and the screen and winged chair, make three other distinct groupings.

But a room of this character would be entirely out of type and cold were it not for the color scheme. In this instance the wall paper plays a big part as background. It is in a peach ground with a design in a vivid blue. This was a happy stroke in giving a feeling of warmth to an otherwise cold-looking room, and in giving a background for an unusually attractive color scheme. It was also an inspiration to paint the floor a dark blue and the inside of the bookcase and glass closet a blue to match the wall paper design.

As gingham is quite the latest thing for the dining-living room of Colonial or peasant influence, a peach gingham with a black line check, and a peach gingham in a novelty design have been used for the screen, table cover, chair and stool ruffles. The window curtains, which do not show in the sketch, are also of the novelty gingham used for the ruffles mentioned. The upholstery of the winged chair and the stool are in blue green one-tone gingham. The rug is of a deep tan. Gingham is used for its sunfast, robust qualities, as well as for a colorful effect.

TRICK TELEPHONES ARE NOW FURNISHED FOR XENIA PATRONS

The Ohio Bell Telephone Company soon will make available in limited numbers hand set telephone instruments to its subscribers who have need of them. These instruments have the receiver and transmitter on a single handle.

Harley W. Cleaver, commercial manager of company here, said "These instruments are not better than the usual desk sets and wall sets but will be supplied to meet the wishes of those subscribers who feel they are more convenient. There have been experiments with hand sets in the Bell Telephone System for many years but the engineers were not willing to adopt hand sets until one could be devised that would give the same high and uniform grade of service which the best desk or wall sets give.

"One of the reasons for the poorer service of previous hand sets is that when the transmitter is on a movable handle as is in the hand set, and that handle may be set in any position the transmitter will not work as well as when it is in a desk or wall set designed to remain in an upright position.

"However, about five years ago the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in its laboratories, developed a principle by which the difficulties of giving good service when using a hand set could be overcome. The telephone company is now in a position to begin installation of hand sets at a small increase in monthly charge plus an installation charge to any who desire this type of instrument."

states, that it has overrun their fields. But to exterminate it as a noxious weed—never!

Twenty-four years ago a Kansas legislature wrote the following sentiment on the statute books:

"This flower has to all Kansans a historic symbolism which speaks of frontier days, winding trails, pathless prairies, and is full of the life and glory of the past; therefore, it is hereby made the state flower and floral emblem of the State of Kansas."

Not in the twenty-four years since has any citizen attacked it or classified it with common noxious weeds. The legislator, no doubt, was acting in good faith in an effort to benefit farmers by including it in his category of trouble some weeds and grasses, but his faux pas may cost the success of his endeavor.

MAIMED BY DYNAMITE

COLUMBUS, O., March 7.—Charles Fleming, 16, was expected today to recover from injuries suffered when he found a dynamite cap in an old stone quarry, and exploded it with a pin. He lost all fingers from one hand and one finger from the other hand.

I'm Most Grateful Every Month

Here's glorious news for long-suffering womankind! To every woman who periodically has suffered pain. Menstruation need no longer be painful. And it is science that is speaking! Specialists have developed a tiny tablet called Midol. It's a simple thing, utterly harmless to a girl of fourteen, but it brings relief in five to seven minutes. And is effective twelve hours or longer!

Midol is NOT a narcotic. It has no effect whatever on heart or nervous system. It acts directly on those organs affected by menstruation. They function normally, as they should, but the pain is banished. Complete relief—yes, perfect comfort—follows Midol.

Your druggist has Midol for 50 cents, in a slim aluminum box to tuck in your purse.

SUNFLOWER, STATE EMBLEM OF KANSAS, ATTACKED BY SOLO

TOPEKA, Kansas, March 7.—Is the state flower of Kansas, the sunflower, just a common noxious weed?

That's what one of the Kansas legislators has termed it in a bill seeking its extermination, and the citizenry of the state is rising in vigorous protest. There is a wave of righteous indignation sweeping Kansas at the assertion—even the suggestion—that the state floral emblem is a noxious weed on the same botanical level with the cocklebur, dog-fennel, Jimson weed and other plant life which Representative Webber contends is sucking the vitality of the soil at the expense of Kansas wheat.

It may be true, Kansans, that the sunflower is sucking a certain vitality from the agrarian terrain. It may be true, as the legislator

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

Just AMONG US GIRLS

by Kathryn Kenney

"WHY DON'T THEY MOVE?"

If you don't know what to do with your life, go to the movies and wait for the feature picture! It used to be that when you went to the movies to see Charlie Chaplin you saw him on the same day. Now that chance is as far off as his Lita Gray home in the west!

The "feature" picture has its nose out of joint now. And the athletic organist has multiplied his daily dozen by ten!

The manager advertises "something for every member of the family"—which ought to do a lot for birth control!

The movie has gotten like the table d'hôte dinner, everybody has a finger in it, including the "waiter." The only thing the managers have overlooked is selling chances in the lobby on seeing the feature picture.

Unless you arrive at the start of the main attraction you should trying to match you heads! You decide to move down three rows and then you appreciate what it meant when the allied armies took a trench.

Now you are directly in front of two girls who haven't seen each other since the lights went out, and haven't seen the boy friend since the last chocolate sundae. They compare notes and what a tangle that is!

First there is a saxophone solo by a man who is hurrying to get his tuxedo back before he has to pay overtime. Matched up with this is a colored slide of a canoeing scene. The water is pink, probably a reflection of the girl's blushes. This gets a lot of snickers from the younger generation who know what modern love-making would do to that boat!

As a prologue to the picture the "Four Horsemen," a quartette

You walk into a movie on tiptoe and come out on someone's ankles. The usher is dressed as Red Riding Hood, the feature picture being "The Four Horsemen."

You finally get squeezed in and wonder how you are going to get your elbows into action in the riding scene. But when it comes to choosing the nearest exit you hope one drops a match.

The man behind you is one of those temperamental birds who gets down on his knees in all the tense moments and reads the captions in Slovakian to someone who answers in grunts.

He finally gets his face on your shoulder and you wonder if he is comes out, and are they hoarse? They ride rough-shod over everything! With them is an over-stuffed soprano in pink and sea shells who sings "In Winter I Get Up at Night." From the looks of the face she ought to practice it other seasons, too!

Now for the picture; but the organist has to have a green light turned on him and you pray for red so that he'll stop! And you have yet to live through the picture of the Prince of Wales who would save a lot of trouble by staying at home.

Why not offer a prize for the first person to see the feature picture? If there is such a person, let him step up, provided he can climb over the laps!

CHILD STRUCK BY AUTO WHEN AT PLAY

Donald Pickering, two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Pickering, Paintersville, received lacerations about the face and was knocked unconscious when struck by an auto, driven by a colored man by the name of Rose, on a Jamestown street, Saturday evening.

The child had gone to Jamestown with Harry Smith, Paintersville grocer, and was playing with Mr. Smith, transacted business. He suddenly ran into the street, behind the car driven by Rose, it is said. He was rolled some distance by the machine, but injuries are not thought serious.

TWO HURT DURING NIGHT CLUB FIGHT

CINCINNATI, O., March 7.—Two men were in a serious condition here today as the result of a "free-for-all" fight in a night-club late Sunday. They are John Calnan, 45, a private detective employed by the club, and Cyrus Barnes, 24, a guest. Barnes was struck twice during the melee, and Calnan suffered a fractured skull. Two men have been arrested in connection with the affair.

CHAPTER LXII

On the first Saturday afternoon in June, Bobbie went to the cinema of the Magnolia Film company, and received her first big check. "It's big to me, at any rate," she said to herself, looking at the words, "Exactly One Hundred and Fifty Dollars," written across the face of it.

Of course, it wasn't big when you compared it with some of the stars' salaries—with the salary of Joan Joyce, for instance. Joan's picture was $5000 a week, and she managed to keep gloriously in debt on it.

"Still, a hundred and fifty bucks, even isn't so bad," thought Bobbie. "I used to work weeks teaching school to make that kind of money."

Strange, she thought, that she did not feel more thrilled about making that much money. Strange that she did not feel more light-hearted now that her money troubles were at an end.

She walked home, and the first place she looked when she unlocked the front door was on the hall table where Mrs. Mangan always left the boarders' letters.

There was none for her. But there was a slip of brown paper upon which Mrs. Mangan had scrawled in her crooked cramped writing: "MacCloud telephoned saying that he expected her about six o'clock."

That meant that he expected her to be right there, glued to the phone, waiting for it to ring at six o'clock, and Bobbie knew it.

"Orders from the King of Siam?" she said to herself, making a little face. "I'll show him he can't boss me around, and tell me where to be at six o'clock!"

She unlocked the receiver and went upstairs, leaving it to hang uselessly upon its cord beside the telephone.

At six o'clock when Gus had said he would phone, the receiver was still hanging there and the phone was as silent as the grave, which is awfully silent.

At fifteen minutes past six, Mrs. Mangan returned from her Saturday afternoon marketing and made a great to-do when she found the receiver off the hook. Something told her that Bobbie had taken it off.

"Who's been monkeying with this phone?" she yelled up the stairs at the top of her thin shrill voice. She paid five dollars a month for that telephone, and she didn't care to have it mistreated.

But she got no answer. For Bobbie, who was the only other person in the house, didn't hear her. She was sitting in the bathtub at that moment, singing at the top of her own voice which was not at all thin and shrill.

"I'll be right here With a fine tin ear"

The Theatre

Those of us who complain that motion picture actors and actresses seldom put real feeling into their "real" scenes, do not take into consideration the number of cases where personal interest adds intensity to the filmed production and the amount of love-making that is the true stuff.

Dozens of romances have budded and bloomed under the Kleig lights as proven by marriages that are still lasting. As a matter of fact, it seems that the weddings that culminated from love scenes on the "set" have lasted longer than those outside the studio. "The Volga Boatman" served to draw William Boyd and Elinor Fair under the spell of Dan Cupid. After Milton Sills and Doris Kenyon played together in "Men of Steel" the bridal veil and wedding ring were a natural consequence.

Harold Lloyd said many "Will you marry me" before the camera, but put his heart in it and Mildred Davis, his leading lady, is now his wife and the mother of a charming little daughter, Gloria. We all remember the romance of Wally Reid and Dorothy Davenport and her loyalty during his illness and death. Claire Windsor and Bert Lytell played in "Son of the Sahara" when their romance began and it is still going on, as they are said to be the happiest among married couples in Hollywood. Tom Mix is married to Victoria Forde and it all began in "Cupid's Round-Up." J. J. Ralston and Dick Arlen played an engaged couple in "Wings" and you can be sure of the realism of the love scenes. Last but not least, is the romance of Lita Grey and Charlie Chaplin, which flamed during "The Gold Rush." The romance has now burned out and divorce is pending.

When E. H. Sothern first appeared in "If I Were King" twenty-five years ago, Daniel Froman commissioned a young artist, Jack Barrymore, a newspaper cartoonist to draw the poster for the play which concerned the romantic adventures of Francois Villon, and from which the recent stage success "The Vagabond King" was taken. Now Barrymore is taking the leading role in the picturization of "If I Were King," under the title of "The Beloved Rogue."

Xenians will at last have a chance to view "The Big Parade" outstanding picture success of recent years. The film will be shown at the City Hall Theater, March 31, under auspices of The Standard Amusement Co. A twelve-piece orchestra will accompany the picture.

DRINK WATER TO HELP WASH OUT KIDNEY POISON

IF YOUR BACK HURTS OR BLADDER BOTHERS YOU, BEGIN TAKING SALTS

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In twenty-four hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. —Adv.

CLEANS THE WATER AS IT CLEANS THE CLOTHES

WASHES YOUR CLOTHES, tub full after tub full, in cleaner water than in any other washer. Efficient sediment chamber under the grator collects all dirt particles released from the clothes. A pint of water flushes it clean when the washing is finished.

The nickel-plated copper tub drains dry and stays polished with a rinse and a wipe. Nothing you use in washing will tarnish, corrode, or dim its luster. There is no oiling for you to do—no oil holes on the machine—no damage to the washer because you forgot to oil it. No oil can get on your clothes. There is no tangling or tearing of clothes. 30 minutes' running time will do a big family wash. Dainty clothes, children's clothes, work clothes, are all safe and washed clean as can be.

Phone for an ABC Double A to try with your washer. No obligation to buy. Compare it with any other washer. Always wins in competition.
